

Then from the cloud
came a voice that said,
“This is my chosen Son;
listen to him.”

REFLECTIONS FROM THE HEART

by Fr. Ivan

“Look up at the sky and count the stars, if you can.” Away from the noisy busy sounds of the metropolitan cities. Far, far away from the distortion and overshadowing of noisy light pollution, are places in our small tiny world that are off the beaten path, off the power grid, off our list of popular places to visit that simply take in and enjoy the everlasting beauty of a clear sunny day and the breathtaking views of the awesome night sky. It is truly a remarkable sight to see and behold. To look up and be able to see and gaze into the endless night sky radiating with the twinkling of pure natural light streaming forth from a countless array of beautiful stars individually hand painted and created by God. Far wider than any of our emerging seas. Much deeper than any of our ocean floors. Further reaching than the stretching of any coast-to-coast comparisons. The incredible night sky seems to pierce into eternity and never ceases to reach the heavens or reflect the glory of God’s illuminating light filling our hearts with warmth, our lives with clarity, and our world with peace. The gentle glow of the expansive night sky. Fulfilling truth, revealing beauty, reflecting goodness, reminding us of the serenity of that quiet, silent, peaceful holy night our dear Savior was born. Imagine the glow of God’s heart and the smile on his face as he created this awesome spectacle for you and for me. To consider the quiet, silent, holy night he created for us. To give us the eyes and the opportunity to gaze upon this natural beauty, to ponder its wholesome goodness, and be overwhelmed and filled with the awe and wonder of its unchanging truth. The infinite beauty of God’s creation, the unfathomable nature of his goodness, and the unchanging truth of his transcending love. God created such beauty, goodness and truth to captivate our attention and give us cause to look up and realize how special we are and remind us who we are and belong to, for as sacred scripture tells us, the Apostle testifies and the night sky witnesses and reveals we are God’s children. Descendants of heaven, citizens of a New Jerusalem, and members of the household of God. Who do you know that could or would create such a massive endless sky, an unfathomable numberless countless array of stars simply to get you to look up and remind you of how many we are, how grand is our family, the family of God.

Latisha's House

Latisha's House provides a long-term, transitional housing program for adult, female survivors of human trafficking and offers individualized support to empower them to build a bridge from their traumatic past to a positive future. Visit www.annunciationorlando.org/lent to make a donation or use the blue collection envelopes and write Latisha's House in the memo.

The local Latisha's House serves all of Central Florida including survivors from Seminole County. Survivors live on the local Latisha's House campus for an average of 18 to 24 months at no cost to them. "The mental bondage and manipulation many survivors have had to deal with for years makes it tough to go from being forcefully dependent on someone to independent living," explains Stephanie O'Connor, the Director of Development and Outreach for Latisha's House Florida. "The reality is that, like victims of domestic violence, a survivor may go back multiple times before the final straw. We do our best to help connect these women to the services they need and be the last stop for them, once and for all."

Latisha's House establishes survivors with local physicians, dentists, and therapists and focuses on financial education, vocational guidance, and skills training. The Latisha's House team also provides support for women who are yearning to reconnect with their families and children. The faith-led organization follows Christian principles but accepts anyone regardless of their spiritual beliefs.

CATECHISM
CHURCH

Catechism Corner

"Because of his transcendence, God cannot be seen as he is, unless he himself opens up his mystery to man's immediate contemplation and gives him the capacity for it."

2500 The practice of goodness is accompanied by spontaneous spiritual joy and moral beauty. Likewise, truth carries with it the joy and splendor of spiritual beauty. Truth is beautiful in itself. Truth in words, the rational expression of the knowledge of created and uncreated reality, is necessary to man, who is endowed with intellect. But truth can also find other complementary forms of human expression, above all when it is a matter of evoking what is beyond words: the depths of the human heart, the exaltations of the soul, the mystery of God. Even before revealing himself to man in words of truth, God reveals himself to him through the universal language of creation, the work of his Word, of his wisdom: the order and harmony of the cosmos-which both the child and the scientist discover-"from the greatness and beauty of created things comes a corresponding perception of their Creator," "for the author of beauty created them."

St. John of God, Religious

The life of St. John of God reads like a novel, an odyssey adventure of a free-spirited young man. He ran away from home at the age of 8, and grew up rather irresponsibly, enlisting finally at the age of 27 in the military service. After serving in wars between Spain and France and in Hungary against the Turks, he became an overseer of slaves in Morocco, and then returned to Spain to tend sheep.

When he was 40 years old, he came to the realization that he needed to change his life and he began to make amends for his dissolute behavior. He decided to go back to Africa, to ransom Christian slaves, and possibly be martyred. But realizing that he was not properly or spiritually motivated, he returned to Spain. There he earned his living by selling holy cards and books, opening a successful shop for this purpose in Granada.

On the feast of St. Sebastian, January 20, 1538, which was a great annual festival in Granada, John heard a sermon by the powerful and famous preacher, St. John of Avila, spiritual director to St. Teresa of Avila, St. John of the Cross, and others. He became so remorseful that he literally made a fool of himself by publicly beating himself, begging for a living, and other wild behaviors. As a result, he was committed to a mental asylum for about a year. This same John of Avila visited him and advised him to be more concerned about the needs of the sick, the poor, and the neglected and to be less harsh with himself.

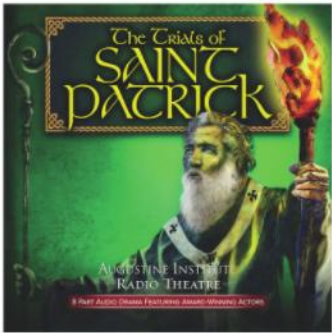

John returned to his senses with great peace of heart, and in 1539 began to work among the sick-poor. He received a lot of monetary support from the wealthy and attracted a number of followers because of his now healthy devout life and humility. Twenty years after his death, these helpers formed the Brothers Hospitallers, or Brothers of St. John of God. John worked tirelessly for the sick for over ten years, and then became ill himself, though he tried to hide it. Eventually, he allowed a friend and admirer, Lady Anne Ossorio, to care for him. John died on March 8, 1550; he was 55 years old. He was canonized in 1690.

There is a lesson in the life of this saint. He was a late bloomer as far as sanctity is concerned. His first real efforts began at age 40, which tell us that it is never too late to start. So often in commenting on the saints we begin by saying they were cradle saints. Here in John of God we have someone that most people can identify with.

We know that we can change for the better, and a little push or shove in the right direction is all we need to take seriously the challenge of holiness. There is nothing in our past that should keep us from making more and stronger efforts, and there are so many opportunities around us for sanctity.

Let St. John of God speak to us: "If we look forward to receiving God's mercy, we can never fail to do good so long as we have the strength. For if we share with the poor, out of love for God, whatever he has given to us, we shall receive according to his promise a hundredfold in eternal happiness. What a fine profit, what a blessed reward! Who would not entrust his possessions to this best of merchants, who handles our affairs so well? With outstretched arms he begs us to turn toward him, to weep for our sins, and to become the servants of love, first for ourselves, then for our neighbors. Just as water extinguishes a fire, so love wipes away sins." (From a letter of John of God, 2nd Readings, Liturgy of the Hours).
