For our relationship with all of creation

Let us pray that, inspired by Saint Francis, we might experience our interdependence with all creatures who are loved by God and worthy of love and respect.

It was a wonderful Welcome Weekend at the parish! We had great treats after Mass and a chance to stay and chat with new families and enjoy some time together in fellowship. Thank you to all of our volunteers!

REFLECTION ON THE GOSPEL

The Feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross, also called the Triumph of the Cross, commemorates three pivotal moments: the discovery of the True Cross in 326, its first exaltation for public veneration in 335, and its recovery from the Persians in 628. Beyond these events, the feast proclaims the transforming power of Christ's sacrifice on the Cross, which has brought redemption to the whole world.

In 313, the Edict of Milan granted freedom of worship throughout the Roman Empire. Soon after, Constantine became sole ruler and, with his mother Saint Helena, sought to honor the places of Christ's life. On pilgrimage to the Holy Land, Helena located Mount Calvary and the tomb of Jesus, where three crosses had been discarded. According to tradition, the Cross of Christ was revealed when a dying woman touched it and was healed. Constantine then built the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, dedicated on September 13, 335. The following day, the Cross was lifted high for the faithful to venerate—the first "Exaltation."

Centuries later, in 614, Persians seized Jerusalem and carried away the Cross. After long campaigns, Emperor Heraclius defeated them in 628 and returned the relic to the Holy Sepulchre. From that time, the Feast of the Holy Cross spread to Rome and then throughout the Church, fixed on September 14.

Still, the true focus of this celebration is not relics or history, but the mystery of salvation. The Cross, once a cruel instrument of death, has become the supreme sign of God's love. By Christ's sacrifice, suffering and death were transformed into mercy, forgiveness, and eternal life.

As disciples, we too are invited to let the Cross shape our lives. Every hardship, injustice, or burden can be united with Christ's own suffering and become a source of grace. Jesus' words remind us: "Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me" (Matthew 16:24).

The Cross is not something to flee but to embrace. When we open our wounds and struggles to Christ, He transforms them—redeeming our suffering and bearing fruit for God's glory and the good of others.

God Loves Us So Much...

The Feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross, or Triumph of the Cross, remembers three big events: when Saint Helena found the Cross of Jesus, when it was first lifted up for people to honor, and when it was returned to Jerusalem after being taken away. Today we celebrate it every year on September 14.

Saint Helena, the mother of Emperor Constantine, found the Cross in Jerusalem. A sick woman was healed when she touched it, showing it was truly the Cross of Jesus. A church was built over the place where Jesus died and rose, and the Cross was lifted up for all to see.

This feast is not just about the wood of the Cross, but about what Jesus did for us on it. He turned the Cross from a tool of pain into a sign of God's great love.

Jesus asks us to carry our own crosses—our struggles and problems—and give them to Him. With Jesus, even our hardest times can bring blessings and new life.

St. Augustine, Bishop and Doctor – August 28 - Part 2

Augustine took up monastic life, and decided to return to Hippo, Africa. There, he reluctantly accepted ordination to the priesthood at the age of 36. He continued his monastic life while studying theology and beginning his apostolate of preaching. Five years later, he became the bishop of Hippo. His activity of the following years was prodigious. He preached often, cared for the poor and orphans, took personal interest in the formation of clergy, established monasteries for men and women, visited the sick, wrote numerous letters and theological treatises, and settled theological controversies.

Pope Pius XI wrote that Augustine was a man "to the likes of whom almost no one, or certainly very few, can be compared of all those who have lived since the beginning of the human race until today." The learned Patrologist B. Altaner, is even more effusive: "The great bishop united in himself the creative energy of Tertullian and the breadth of spirit of Origen with the ecclesiastical sensitivity of Cyprian; the dialectical acumen of Aristotle with the soaring idealism and speculation of Plato; the practical sense of the Latins with the spiritual sensitivity of the Greeks. He was the greatest philosopher of the patristic era and, without doubt, the most important and influential theologian of the Church in general. Since his own times, his works have found enthusiastic admirers." (Note: A patrologist is a theologian who specializes in study of the works of the Church Fathers.)

St. Augustine was demanding of himself in ascetical matters, and according to one writer "he was marked by a moderate yet austere asceticism." He humbly acknowledged his errors, and was dedicated to study, prayer, and contemplation. As a pastor and bishop, he defined himself as "servant of Christ and servant of the servants of Christ." (Letter 117). He made himself completely available for the needs of his people and to the Church in her struggles and problems. "I do not want to be saved without you," he said to his people. (Sermon 17).

"Lord, renew in your church the spirit you gave St. Augustine. Filled with this spirit, may we thirst for you alone as the fountain of wisdom and seek you as the source of eternal love."
