Feast of the Presentation of the Lord - February 2

Simeon blessed them and said to Mary his mother, "Behold, this child is destined for the fall and rise of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be contradicted - and you yourself a sword will pierce - so that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed." Luke 2:34-35

REFLECTION ON THE GOSPEL

The Beatitudes call us to the heights of morality and holiness. Those who live by these divine teachings are blessed beyond measure. The promises are great: they become children of God and inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, receiving comfort, fulfillment, mercy, purity, and peace. Yet the demands are equally great—spiritual poverty, holy sorrow, meekness, a hunger for righteousness, mercy, purity, peacemaking, and patient endurance in persecution.

The Beatitudes represent the culmination of God's moral teaching and the highest expression of the Christian life. To grasp their full meaning, it helps to understand the unfolding of moral revelation, which also traces the path of our own spiritual journey toward perfection.

Morality begins with the Natural Law—the knowledge of right and wrong written on the human heart. This law, given by God, is often described as living according to right reason. Through conscience, all people can recognize God as Creator, respect human dignity and the common good, and avoid acts such as murder, theft, and deception. Though universal, sin and fallen human nature cloud our ability to perceive and follow this law.

In the Old Testament, God gradually called His people to deeper holiness by building upon the Natural Law through revelation. From Abraham's descendants, God raised up Moses and revealed the Ten Commandments—a clear moral code rooted in Natural Law and given directly by God, calling His people to right worship, justice, and love of neighbor.

Through the prophets—especially Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel—God summoned Israel beyond external observance to interior conversion. Isaiah emphasized justice and mercy; Jeremiah foretold a new covenant written on the heart; Ezekiel promised a new heart and spirit, enabling obedience to God's ways.

The wisdom books—Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Wisdom, and Sirach—further deepened moral understanding by teaching reverence for the Lord, the blessedness of righteousness, and trust in God's providence.

The Beatitudes fulfill and elevate the Old Covenant. Jesus not only calls us to holiness but gives us the grace to live it through His Sacrifice, shared in the Sacraments. To live the Beatitudes is to imitate Christ, who perfectly embodied every virtue. They are not merely moral commands, but an invitation to share in the life of the Son of God.

GROW IN YOUR FAITH

The Kids Bulletin

Beatitudes

The Beatitudes teach us how to live close to God. They show us how to be kind, humble, and loving. People who live this way are blessed. God promises them peace, joy, and a home in Heaven. Living this way is not always easy, but it helps us become more like Jesus.

God teaches us right from wrong through our hearts. This is called conscience. It helps us know to love God, care for others, and not hurt or lie or steal. But sometimes people make mistakes and forget what is right.

God gave His people more help in the Bible. He gave Moses the Ten Commandments to teach people how to love God and love others. He also sent prophets to remind them to be kind and follow God.

Jesus fulfilled all these teachings in the Beatitudes. He shows us how to live them. Jesus gives us grace to help us. When we follow the Beatitudes, we live like Jesus and grow closer to Him.

St. Angela Merici January 27

Orphaned at age 10, Angela was raised by an uncle, and by age 13 she was living an austere life as a Franciscan tertiary. After the death of her uncle, she took an interest in the education of poor children. She realized that the education of young girls among the poor was especially neglected.

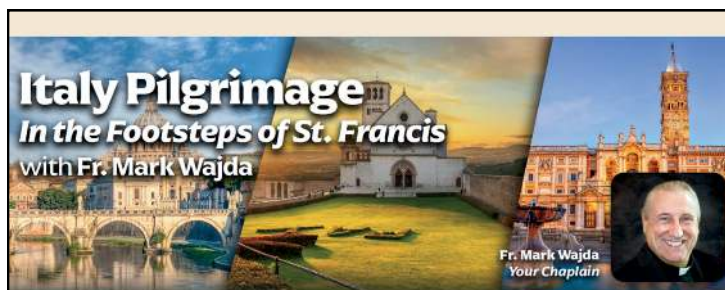

Angela gathered around her a group of young women who shared her ideals and interests. The number soon grew to 28 and on November 25, 1535 they dedicated themselves to God under the protection of St. Ursula. They continued to live at home, without vows, but observed the evangelical counsels of poverty, chastity, and obedience. Their purpose from the beginning was to provide for the religious education of girls, especially among the poor. They also hoped to re-Christianize their families as these girls grew up to be wives and mothers.

The company of St. Ursula became a religious congregation only several years after the death of Angela, who died in the year 1540. The group became the Congregation of St. Ursula four years later with the approval of Pope Paul III.

In her Spiritual Testament, St. Angela wrote: "A good tree, that is, a good heart as well as a soul inflamed with charity, can do nothing but good and holy works. For this reason, St. Augustine said: "Love and do what you will, namely, possess love and charity and then do what you will. It is as if he had said: Charity is not able to sin." (2nd Reading, Liturgy of the Hours).
